The complete texts of Roberto Assagioli's writings are now available on the Assagioli Archives site

To the approximately 19,000 documents and handwritten notes held in the Studio Archives, new ones belonging to the Synthesis Section are now also available for online access. These are the printed publications of Assagioli's writings, the typewritten texts of lectures and conferences, the drafts of articles and books, written in Italian and English, but also in many other languages.

All the documents, divided by language and alphabetically ordered by title, have been scanned and cataloged to facilitate research and consultation.

This new addition will be of great interest to those wishing to deepen the knowledge of Roberto Assagioli's thought, which covers a very long period of time, i.e. from the first writings of 1905 to 1974.

We invite you to visit the website www.archivioassagioli.org and consult the Archives (after a simple free registration), leafing through the individual documents contained in the folders or doing targeted searches on the topics that interest you.
